

DESIGNING AND MAKING SILVERWARE

Start dates: 18/09/17, 15/01/18, 23/04/18

Hours: Monday 7pm-9pm

Course duration: 10 weeks

Cost: £155 (price may be reduced depending on your circumstances)

This course is an introduction to the basics of silversmithing. It is suitable for new learners however; anyone with prior experience will be supported to pursue individual projects following discussion.

In the first term, beginners will learn basic skills in piercing, forming, soldering and finishing via a 'bezel box project'.

Those with experience (or booking onto further blocks) will focus on creating a small (yet more complex) sculptural and individualised piece incorporating techniques such as press-work, forging, mitering and scoring. Candle-holders or culinary utensils are suggested projects.

Whilst silverware is commonly perceived as 'shiny and polished' there will be an emphasis on considering surface finish, embellishment and decoration.

During your learning journey, you will also gather some contextual awareness of makers in the field and sources for materials to further your personal learning.
